The DIG-i-READY project on digital inclusion in Vocational Education and Training (VET) in Europe is hosting a final event to present the two project results and explore the way forward for inclusive digital education. The project was born with the idea of tackling the issues educational establishments faced due to the closure of schools during the COVID-19 pandemic, all over Europe. In an effort to guide VET educators and schools, the project partners created a Good Practices Catalogue and a Handbook. Both these project results can be used by teachers and decision-makers in the field of VET, serving as support material to shift to digital education in times of crisis.

The event will focus on presenting these project results and sparking conversation on digital inclusion in schools and its reality in Europe.
